Williamson Co. Gang War Breaks Out Anew

HOME OF WEST CITY'S MAYOR BOMBED TODAY

Members of Birgers' Gang are Believed Responsible

West City, Ill., Nov. 19.—The home of Mayor Joe Adams here was a target in the Shelton-Birgers gang warfare again today when a bomb was thrown from an automobile and exploded a few feet from the house.

The glass in windows was shattered and the front porch was damaged. Mayor Adams, who with his wife and brother Gus, were sleeping in the rear of the house, escaped injury.

Mayor Adams, who has been a supporter of the Shelton gang, said four shots were fired before the bomb was thrown. He believed this was intended as a decoy and did not show himself.

Eight men seen.

A neighbor said he saw eight men retreating from the rear of the Adams house after the explosion.

Four deputy sheriffs had been guarding the house, but had left to get some coffee.

Franklin County officers believed the attack was staged by members of the Birgers gang.

A week ago, the house of Gus Adams, two doors from his brother's, was bombed with bullets and a few hours later Carl and Bernice Shelton, gang leaders, were arrested on a charge of robbing a mail messenger at Collinsville, Illinois of $15,000 January 27, 1925.

Earl Shelton, another brother, was arrested last night at East St. Louis and arrangements were made today to take him to Springfield for trial.

Preparatory flight for South American Journey.

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The American Navy's newest ships of the air, the two PN-10, flying boats, under command of Lieutenant Commander H. T. Bartlett, hopped off from the Navy Yard at 7:15 o'clock today for Norfolk, Va., on the preparatory leg of a non-stop flight to Panama.

The non-stop trip will be started from Norfolk and will be a cruise commensurate with the flight made by the late Commander John Rodgers to Hawaii. It covers a distance of 2179 miles and will take about 27 hours to complete if all goes well.

Today's hop is in the nature of a final test. The non-stop flight will be started within a few days, Commander Bartlett said.

The Lee County Medical Society will hold one of the largest meetings in the history of the organization at the Dixon state hospital next Tuesday afternoon and evening, the officers having accepted the invitation of Dr. Warren G. Murray, supervising officer of the institution and his staff. Invitations have been sent out to physicians and surgeons throughout the northern part of the state to be the guests of the Lee County Society at this meeting.

Two eminent specialists have been secured to present papers before the medical society at the meeting Tuesday evening. Mrs. Sam'l. Herbst of Franklin Called

Mrs. Samuel Herbst of Franklin Grove, passed away at 9 o'clock this morning at the Katherine Shaw Be-the-hospital. She submitted to an operation several days ago and was apparently making good recovery, until she suffered a relapse and sank rapidly. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday from the home at 1:30 and from the church at 2 o'clock with burial in the Franklin Grove cemetery. The obituary will be published later.

Tax Reduction to Hold Center Congress' Stage

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Indications that the principal battle of the approaching session of congress will revolve about the tax reduction continue to multiply.

Not only has opposition to the administration plan for credit allowances on tax payments next year been disclosed in republican circles, but democratic leaders are preparing for a drive looking to enactment of permanent tax reduction instead of waiting, as Secretary Mellon advises, for a more complete demonstration of the present law's operation.

Marion and Louise Steel of Chicago are here to attend the funeral of their grandmother, Mrs. Louise P. Steel.

FORMER CAPTAIN IN JOLIET PRISON TELLS HOW HE WAS FORCED TO TAKE ESCAPING PRISONERS TO OUTER WALL

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Testimony which he said had cost him his job at the Illinois State Penitentiary, was given under cross examination here today by former Captain John Keeley in the murder trial of the six convicts who murdered Deputy Warden Klein on May 6.

Keeley told the convicts forced him to lead them to the outer wall, past which no one had authority to take men without a written slip with names and numbers signed by the Warden or Deputy Warden Klein.

"I expected I would be stopped at the gate," Keeley said.

"Then I went to the phone booth to order Deputy Warden Klein's car, as the convicts had demanded. Convict Roa went thence and no one questioned him or asked why it was he should go in."

Francis Loughran of defense counsel asked Keeley then if he expected his job back.

"No I don't," Keeley answered.

Samuel Odon negro trustee and porter in the solitary prison, gave the first testimony of hearing Klein speak when the convicts approached him. He said he saw Duchowsky "ease" into Klein's office.

Then he observed convicts Roa and Price start into the office and immediately his suspicion was aroused. He said he stopped Price in the hallway and as a result was stabbed by the fifth convict Rizzio.

Later Odon said he saw two of the convicts hall carrying Klein from his office. "Duchowsky said 'Let's kill him,'" directly afterward he observed Klein keel over the desk.

SPEED "TOUCHED" FOR $25 IN BOOK STORE YESTERDAY

Tomorrow Last Day to Claim Any of This Stranger's Gold

Mysterious Speed has lost his first $25 in Dixon.

J. Houser, a salesman, got him for $25 in Edwards book store Thursday afternoon. Speed has just started on his shopping tour for the afternoon when Houser spotted him in the Buick car. The salesman had been reading about Speed in The Telegraph, and because he was unable, an account of the snowbound roads, to make his trip into the country, he decided to take up the chase. Speed told of it.

"I had been in the book store but a few minutes when I saw a man come in, but I did not know where he could have had it planted. Just as I asked for a magazine Earl Buck stepped in front of me, but at that Hauser made a high dive and jumped all over Buck. I saw Telegraphs flying in the air and at that Hauser repeated the slogan correctly, and I had to dig up."

"Hauser said it was well worth the time and it was the easiest $25 he had ever made. W. Edwards sold me the magazine but passed up the gold. Here is the slogan for tomorrow—the last day."

"Hello Speed, Hand me five. That Master Buick is some Buick. Here is The Telegraph."

Saturday Speed will shop from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., and shopping will include eating, drinking or anything he has to spend money for. So take The Telegraph to work tomorrow and try to get the gold coin—the last chance. If you don't get gold you may get candy or cigars—features made possible by the Purity Confectionery and the Public Drug & Book Co.

CLINTON GUNMEN INDICTED IN MT. CARROLL COURT

Thugs Who Were Captured by Home Guards Named

Mount Carroll—An echo of the incident of nearly a year ago when home guards of Chadwick, captured, after a battle, several outlaws who escaped into Illinois after kidnapping from the Iowa authorities two men who were being taken into court for sentence in connection with a holdup, came in the indictment yesterday of Joseph Murray, John Redman, Albert Fairfield and Harry Williams on charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

Some of the men are now serving time in Iowa prisons and the indictments were returned in order that, should they be released from prison before having served what the local authorities regard as an unreasonably short term of service, they may be re-arrested and tried in Carroll county.

The complete list of indictments returned follows:

Samuel Cadel, perjury.

Joseph Murray, John Redman, Albert Fairfield and Harry Williams, conspiracy.

Albert Fairfield, assault with intent to commit murder.

Joseph Murray, assault with intent to commit murder.

John Redman, assault with intent to commit murder.

Ronald Stoner and John Hoffmann, grand larceny.

Frank Pease, violation of prohibition act and carrying concealed weapons.

Herbert Calkins, driving car while intoxicated.

Hortense Whitney, violation of prohibition act.

No indictment was returned against Andrew Strauch, publisher of the Chadwick Clarion at Chadwick against whom a large bill charging libel was returned several months ago, the indictment being subsequently quashed. Strauch, who is more than 70 years old, has been a stormy petrel in Carroll county politics for many years.

Don't Bury Hydrants Under Snow Says Chief

Fire Chief Thomas Coffey issues an appeal to the people of Dixon that in removing snow from sidewalks, care be taken not to pile it about the fire hydrants. Instead citizens will perform acts of value if they remove the snow from around the fire hydrants.

RAINS, SNOW CAUSE RIVER TO CREEP UP

Stage of 20 Feet Within Week Predicted by River Men

Beardstown, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Rain and snow falling here for almost a week has caused the Illinois river to rise steadily and old river men of the community predict a stage of twenty feet within the next week.

A twenty foot stage would work great hardships on the people here, since nearly all basements in both residential and business sections would be flooded, making it impossible to have fires in the furnaces.

The highest stage reached during the recent flood was 26.25 feet. The crest dropped to 14.6 and Thursday morning had risen again to 17.2, a rise of 7 of a foot since Wednesday morning.

COLD FOLLOWS SNOW

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The middle west bore the brunt today of a cold wave that spread over the country and blanketed the corn states with snow.

Thermometer readings in all sections excepting the northeast, the middle Atlantic states and the lower end of the Pacific slope were unseasonably low and the western portion of the corn belt shivered as the mercury fluctuated around 20 degrees.

The storm which swept out of the northwest Tuesday with snow and chilly gusts eddied about the Great Lakes region and the center moved into Wisconsin.

Record Snow Fall

Record breaking November snows lay in the wake of the disturbance which took a touch of winter as far south as the Texas Pan-Handle and there was a forecast of snowfall today over the central states.

Motor traffic on many Illinois highways was held up by drifts and Moine had eight inches of fall. At Baraboo, Wis., snow falling continuously for 24 hours disrupted transportation and snow plows were used in Minnesota.

The weather bureau forecast cold weather for the season over the central portion of the country, some snow and continued cold in the mid-west, but no severe temperatures.

STATE ROADS BLOCKED

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—A check up of Wednesday's snow storm shows that eight inches fell, M. L. Fuller, U. S. Weather man here says. An additional half inch fell Thursday and flurries continue today.

Hugh snow drifts caused by high winds of the last two nights, blocked state highways at many points in central Illinois today and the state road crews were being enlarged and were all equipped with big snow plows to clear the cuts. Route 9 was blocked this morning by a large bus which stuck in a drift. The rushneck to Macomb road was blocked at some points by 8 to 10 foot drifts. Route 23 was blocked between Galva and Galesburg. Route 9 to Bloomington is doubtful and football fans going to the Illinois game are being advised to go by train. All road equipment in this district was being utilized today.

Tomorrow's Foot Ball Game is Off

Because of the deep snow on the Athletic Park playing field on the north side, tomorrow's scheduled football game between the Dixon and Mt. Morris high school teams has been called off. The Dixon team's next and last game will be against Sterling at that city Thanksgiving Day.

HIGH SCHOOL SITUATION IN DIXON BECOMES MORE ACUTE EACH YEAR, KIWANIS TOLD

PRINCETON ROAD TO ENTER DIXON ON GALENA AVE.

Opening of New Street Required for State Highway Project

A new street in Dixon, will probably have to be opened up for the accommodation of the proposed state highway, route No. 89, running south from this city to Princeton, according to plans and surveys which have been made and are on file in the office of the state department of highways. Supervising Engineer O. F. Goeke announced the proposed plan this morning and also in an address before the Dixon Kiwanis Club.

The plans provide for the beginning of the new highway on Galena avenue, going south on that street and bearing westerly, necessitating the opening of a new street in the south part of the city. The present Peoria Road overhead bridge spanning the Northwestern main line tracks, would be moved east a short distance, providing a straight line for the new highway and at the same time serving the present Peoria avenue traffic into Dixon. The change, it is pointed out, is necessary for the benefit of both the city and the highway.

In his address before the Kiwanis, Engineer Goeke stated that a universal all over the United States. The history of secondary education shows that the modern high school is the outgrowth of the academy and that the academy has its origin in the Latin grammar school of the colonial period. The first Latin grammar school was developed in the Virginia colony in Charles City in 1621 and was open to boys who were particularly interested in the study of the professions and were preparing themselves to enter the colleges and universities. The primary study of such schools, as the name indicated was Latin. This type of school, prevailing through the country and had its best growth in the colony of Massachusetts.

The academy was organized as a school which prepared its students for life rather than for college and as Benjamin Franklin said, it was a place where the students could be taught "everything useful." These schools were not locally situated but drew students from various parts of the country and gradually became, as the Latin grammar schools became.

First One in Boston

About the middle of the nineteenth century, or around, or immediately after the Civil War the so-called high school had its birth in the city of Boston. These schools were free public schools and according to the state law each community with sufficient population was compelled to establish such a school with the double function of preparing a student for college and also giving a cultural and practical education to the students who did not intend to go to college. About 1880, in addition to mathematics and English the sciences and foreign languages were added to the curriculum. About 1890 the vocational courses were added such as manual training and domestic science following closely, the commercial courses such as shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping were added to the curriculum. Margaret Malone, aged six years, was found dead in her bed at the Dixon state hospital this morning shortly after 5 o'clock. The body was removed to the Jones funeral home where Coroner Frank M. Barker conducted an inquest at 11 o'clock today. The jury returned a verdict finding that death was due to heart trouble. Burial will take place in the institution cemetery.

FIFTEEN REPORTED DEAD. SCORES INJURED IN EXPLOSION ABOARD AN OIL TANKER IN BALTIMORE HARBOR

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Fifteen men were reported killed and 25 injured as workers plunged frantically into the blazing hulk of the Norwegian Oil Tanker Mantilla, wrecked by an explosion in the dry dock of the Bethlehem Steel Company at Sparrows Point, this afternoon.

The Mantilla's crew of 35, including Captain Danielson, was aboard with an undetermined number of dry dock workers when one of the vessel's tanks blew up from an unknown cause.

The spray of blazing oil thrown by the blast fired the ship from stem to stern. Nearby buildings were damaged. Dock hands rallied to the aid of firemen in attempting to hold the fire in check while volunteers entered the hulk to bring out the dead and injured. Workers were endangered by the ship's other tanks which it was feared might explode at any time.

All efforts were being bent toward getting the injured out of the danger zone and while the fire was at its height, no attempt had been made to check the identities of the dead.

MRS. GIBSON AFFIRMS HER STORY IS TRUE

State Nears Finish of Its Presentation in Hall-Mills

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The state rested its case against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, this afternoon after thirteen days of testimony.

BULLETIN.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Gibson, who claims to have witnessed the celebrated Hall-Mills murder four years ago, rested comfortably in the Jersey City Hospital today after giving from a bed in the court house testimony which is the foundation of the state's case.

"I have told the truth, so help me God. And you know it—you know it"—she screamed at Mrs. derwood, arrested Frances Stevens defendants. Hall, one of the three defendants, as she was being taken from the court room on a stretcher. The jury had retired and did not hear this.

Mrs. Gibson was on the stand four hours yesterday and identified Mrs. Hall, and her two brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens who are on trial with her for the murder of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, as present at the scene of the murder.

Mother a Spectator

Mrs. Gibson's 76-year-old mother, called by the defense to discredit her daughter's testimony, was a silent spectator as the key witness for the state, guarded by an attentive nurse and doctor, recounted a tale of having stumbled into view of a tragedy while hunting corn thieves one night.

Cross examinations consisted largely of questions as to her past life and apparent contradictions of testimony she gave at a previous hearing, presumably with a view to attacking her credibility later.

Former Maid Recalled

Miss Barbara Tough, former maid in the home of Mrs. Hall today was recalled to the witness stand by the state to tell more about the razor owned by Rev. Hall.

Earlier in the trial the prosecution introduced an old fashioned razor but it has not yet been admitted as evidence. The threat of Mrs. Willis was slashed after she had been shot. In her earlier testimony, Miss Tough said that the razor introduced by the state was not the same length as that one owned by the Rev. M. Hall.

"This Razor, where was it kept?"

asked Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor today.

"In a small medicine chest," answered Miss Tough.

"Can you say positively whether you saw the razor in the cabinet after the murder?"

"No, I cannot."

Miss Tough said she remained in Hall home as a maid following the double slaying Sept. 14, 1922.

Inspector Underwood of Jersey City, the 7th witness in the trial, testified that he was in charge of the present trial, and that he received the calling card said to bear the finger prints of Willie Stevens in Jersey City on the evening of August 15. He said that Philip Payne, managing editor of the New York Daily Mirror, was present.

Forgot Three Days

"Has the card been in your possession ever since?" Simpson asked.

"Yes."

Robert McCarter, chief defense counsel took up the cross examination.

"Did you say that the card had not left your possession at any time?"

"Yes."

"Didn't Lieut. Breven, your finger print expert have it for three days?"

"Yes, I had forgotten that."

Underwood said he gave it to Brewster.

PRICE-FIXING COMMISSION IS MEREDITH PLAN

Former Sec. of Agriculture Has Scheme to Aid Farmers

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A federal commission to fix and guarantee prices to farmers on at least six major products is advocated by Edwin T. Meredith, former Secretary of Agriculture, as a means toward stabilization of agriculture.

Mr. Meredith, who is a potential candidate for the 1928 democratic presidential nomination, outlined his plan here last night.

The commission would consist of the secretary of labor, the secretary of agriculture, the secretary of commerce, and four other members to be named by the president. It would first concern itself with the prices of wheat, cotton, corn, sugar, butter and wool, with the object of not only securing a minimum price, but a balanced production as well.

This balanced production, he said, should meet all the demands of the domestic market plus the foreign demand and at a price which would give farmers an American standard of living. Other crops could be taken over later.

Members are invited to visit the home and spend an evening with their fraternal brothers. They will be well repaid for the time spent. Friendships can be made and an evening's enjoyment gained at favorite games.

The second degree will be conferred on a class of candidates Sunday, November 28 at 2 p. m. The third degree will be exemplified to a large class Sunday, Dec. 12. All members are asked to be present on these two occasions. A special meeting will be held at 8 p. m. Monday, Nov. 29.

The "B" Girls will meet Monday evening instead of Tuesday. Members are asked to note the change and to be present, as a very delightful time is anticipated.

The Women's Catholic Order of Foresters will hold their first meeting in the club hall next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

"The calls that came in to The Telegraph I will make, and I will also call at some places where the people were either out or not up to date. I only wish my engagement in Dixon was for another week. I have had a wonderful time and met many wonderful people. I find Dixon as up to date as any little city I have found anywhere. The stores and business places are just as up-to-date as I find in cities many times its size, and I also find good streets and everyone seemingly prosperous. I have seen but few empty houses and no one out of work. Dixon people should be thankful for I find many cities where hundreds are looking for work.

"Saturday is my last day in Dixon, but I hope to return some time in the future. I wish all the Lee county folks a most prosperous and successful future."

HIGH SCHOOL SITUATION IS ACUTE

past fifteen years vocational agriculture, and in some of the larger centers, various trades and industries have been added to the curriculum.

Growth Due to Merit. The abnormal growth in high school population is due to the type of work that is being offered. Thirty years ago the number of students in the public high schools of America was 250,000. Ten years after the enrollment was doubled and fifteen years ago, which was ten years after the enrollment was 500,000 the high school enrollment had again redoubled and was in round numbers 1,000,000. Five years ago which is again ten years later the Bureau of Education again estimated the number of high school students in the United States as 2,000,000.

This tremendous growth is out of all proportion to the growth of population in the United States but shows that the students of high school age are continuing their schooling instead of dropping out at the end of their training in the elementary schools. The next five years will not show 4,000,000 in school, that is, the high school enrollment will not double in the next decade because there are not that many students of high school age in the country.

Big Growth in Dixon. Our own local enrollment has a very similar growth for the last eight years. The enrollments in the South Side High School are as follows:

1919-20-250
1920-21-230
1921-22-310
1922-23-340
1923-24-365
1924-25-421
1925-26-423
1926-27-427

These figures show comparatively no growth during the past three years which would indicate that either the students of high school age are going to high school, or some students that might come to Dixon are probably being sent elsewhere where better opportunities and facilities are offered.

There is no denial of the fact that more adequate housing facilities are needed and from past experience it is the logical thing to conclude that district No. 170, or Dixon, should build its own high school. The majority of voters have said that we do not want a township or community high school and in many instances those who have voted against the separate high school organization have favored the erection of a city high school, under the control of the same board of education in charge of the grades.

Dixon's School Tax Low. Opponents of the high school proposition have maintained that the school tax is very high but when we compare the local school tax with forty or fifty other cities the same size as Dixon or larger, in the state of Illinois, it is found that our tax rate of $2.27 is very much lower than the average school rate of other cities of this size as shown in the following figures:

Rockford 2.70
Rockford 2.72
Galesburg 2.75
Macomb 3.01
Canton 3.02
Danville 3.13
Pontiac 3.14
Elgin 3.17
Peru 3.29
W. Aurora 3.26
Clinton 3.72
Lincoln 3.75
Beardstown 4.00
Morris 4.00
Kewanee 4.00
Rock Island 4.00
Moline 4.13
St. Charles 4.21
Woodstock 4.23
DeKalb 4.23
LaSalle 4.23
Spring Valley 4.91
LaGrange 6.75
Winnebago 6.75

The whole thing resolves itself into whether or not we need a high school. If it is the belief that a high school is needed, immediate steps should be taken toward the formulation of plans to erect one and if it is not needed we should get along the best we can with what we have.

Will Sail from New York City Next Wednesday

Queen Marie's Train, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Queen Marie today is speeding homeward to Rumania and her king, Ferdinand, who is ill. She has no thought of further sight-seeing or receptions. She virtually concluded her tour yesterday at Louisville and has cancelled all plans for visits to other cities in America, expressing the desire to obtain the first steamer available from New York. Reservations have been made on the Boreas leaving New York next Wednesday.

Prince Nicholas wishes to see De Witt and Cleveland. He planned to leave the royal train at North Bend, Ohio, motor to Cincinnati and Detroit.

Her Majesty will proceed to New York, arriving tomorrow night. Princess Helena will accompany her mother. She seemed to have suffered no ill effects from her recent automobile accident at Grant Park, Ill.

BANKERS WORRIED. Vienna, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The condition of King Ferdinand of Rumania is considered in banking circles here, which are in close touch with Bucharest, to be so serious as to justify the anxiety of Queen Marie who has cancelled her tour in the United States.

All official sources, however, are silent or evasive regarding the condition of Ferdinand.

BENJAMIN STILL REIGNS AS KING HOUSE OF DAVID

His Arrest Failed to Lessen Influence With Followers

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Benjamin Purnell, whose four years of voluntary exile were terminated by a raid on his hiding place Wednesday by state police, still reigns as king at the House of David.

Indictments charging criminal assault, damage suits, actions started by state authorities to seek dissolution of the colony, and even his apparent serious illness, will not diminish the spiritual significance of his rule, says his attorneys and devoted follower, H. T. Dewhurst.

MRS. GIBSON AFFIRMS HER STORY IS TRUE

on on the morning of August 17. Defense counsel conferred.

Around Pictures Barred. Charles H. Goddard, fire arms and bullet expert of New York City, was called to testify concerning the bullet wounds in the heads of Rev. Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills. Goddard's partner, Charles Waite, was to have testified for the state but he died last Sunday. There was a clash when Simpson attempted to introduce pictures which Goddard said Waite had made of the bullets taken from the head of Mrs. Mills.

During the argument, the pasteboard box of clothing worn by the victims the night their bodies were found beneath the crab apple tree was brought into court.

Goddard said that a microscopic study of the three bullets from Mrs. Mills' head showed they were fired from the same gun.

Case still objected to admission of the photographs on the ground that the state had not proved that they have any connection with the case and Judge Parker upheld him.

HOUSE HAS DECLINED.

Tributes to Joseph G. Cannon as a statesman and to his record of forty-six years in the house of representatives are nation-wide. Particularly have the newspapers of Illinois take pride in the fact that this state gave him to the nation. We may expect the Chicago Tribune, which has seen nothing in this long career of a powerful figure to draw editorial comment. Perhaps that is consistent with its attitude during his lifetime.

In this issue are reprinted excerpts from many of the editorials, some of which were lengthy. Nearly all referred to the power of the speakership of the house under his reign and that of Thomas B. Reed, and to the revision of the rules, which stripped the presiding officer of this power. Those who expressed opinion as to the effect of that action have concluded that it weakened the house of representatives.

"We do not think that anyone will deny that from that moment the authority and influence of the house of representatives have steadily declined," says the Boston Transcript.

"Fifteen years after Cannonism was broken in 1910, the house returned to the Cannon policy," says the Philadelphia Ledger. "The house was wrong in 1910. It needed a boss, and in 1925 the house rules were revised, stiffened and straightened, and much of the speaker's power that was taken away when the house rebelled against the sage of Danville was restored."

Both of these newspapers found expression of their sentiment in the phrase that we "ne'er shall look upon his like again."

It probably is an illusion in each generation that a prior age produced greater men. We may accept it as so and grant that we have as great men in this age, and still ask the question as to whether they do not seek careers in business and professions rather than in politics. Do not our greater men shy at primary elections, and do we not lose their public service unless they are drafted by appointment as were Secretary Mellon and Secretary Hoover, who were brought into the cabinet by President Harding?

Then we have the situation in the house of representatives. When men have entered public life as congressmen, has the house been such a field as to develop them? Is it not a fact that the lower house of congress has degenerated by reason of the weakening of the power of the speaker? We believe it is not an illusion that the house was a stronger institution in the days of Reed and Cannon.

DAWES PLAN FOR FARM RELIEF.

Vice President Dawes delivered an address in Omaha in which he advocated solution of the problem of farm relief in the manner in which reparations questions were settled in Europe. He proposed taking the issue out of politics and placing it in the hands of business men, a small nonpartisan group which will command the respect of every section of the country.

"No economist will take exception to the statement that the crisis exists," said Dawes. "The corner is passed; the country will not be satisfied until the problem is solved. It can not be solved by politicians, but must be met by competent business men."

Doubtless the whole nation is hopeful that some way may be found to carry out the thought of the vice president. The issue was brought into politics upon the theory that congressional legislation evolved the inequality and that congressional legislation should correct it. If the crisis can be removed without an act of congress, the nation will welcome such a solution.

The stumbling block in obtaining legislation is in the eastern sentiment that the farmer should continue to produce cheap food so that capital and labor in industry may prosper. Secretary Mellon voiced the eastern sentiment when he said that higher farm products would handicap industry in its competition with Europe, where foods are produced at lower cost than in the United States.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

The Tynymytes rose with the dawn, and shortly found the food was gone that they had left the night before upon the little cart. Said Copy, "Gee, that's mighty mean," on seeing all the plates licked clean. "I'd planned a lovely breakfast, and it nearly breaks my heart."

Then Scouty said, "Why make a fuss? I guess that's what was due for us. We were the first to steal the food, so why should we complain? Someone has turned the same old trick on us and turned it mightily slick."

It ought to teach us all that we should never steal again. Well, anyway, the food was shy, so Ukey said, "We'd better try to plan another breakfast with what ever can be found. Let's hike to yonder field of corn. It does no good to sit and mourn. There'll be no harm if we just eat what's lying on the ground."

So off they ran and ate their fill and sat and loafed in peace until they heard some hoisterous laughter in a tree not far away. "Ha, ha, ho, ho," the laughter came. "You're eating corn? Well, that's a shame." And then they knew 'twas Clowny and the whole band yelled "hurry!"

The Tynymytes rushed up in glee, and looked up in the maple tree. "Come on and join me," Clowny said. "This tree's a chum to scale. It seems I've been away a year. My sorry you'll be glad to hear." So the all climbed up in the tree to listen to his tale.

Then Clowny had a heap of fun in telling of the things he'd done since Mister Farmer'd taken him away from all the band. "And weren't you scared?" we Ukey said, and Clowny merely shook his head. "Why should I be? The trip I had was really very grand."

SAINT and SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

In that embarrassing moment, Faith's first thought was for Cherry—she was immensely glad that her little sister had not opened the door when she and Bob Hathaway were in each other's arms.

"Yes, I took the letters," Faith told her quietly, but she could not keep her eyes from shining with joy. "I came to ask Bob for an explanation, and it's just as I thought—it wasn't Bob at all. I knew nothing whatever about the letters. It was his stenographer, Lola Gonzales."

"She hates me like poison," Cherry's scarlet lips set in a thin, ugly line.

"Why?" Faith put her hand on Cherry's shoulder and turned the girl so that she had to face her.

"Well, I got her job with Mr. Cluny, didn't I? And if you must know, the little head, in its saucy brown cloche was flung up defiantly, 'she's nuts about Chris Wiley, and I made him give her the air.'"

"He must have laid her off only temporarily," Bob Hathaway cut in unsympathetically, "for he's been going around with her since you became engaged to Uncle Ralph."

"That's a lie!" Cherry flung the ugly word at him in childish fury. "He's through with her, I tell you! I guess I ought to know."

"Because you're seeing Chris Wiley yourself, on the sly," Bob Hathaway's anger rode high, reckless of Faith's distressed, pleading eyes.

"Cherry, you've got to apologize to Bibi!" Faith seized her sister's arms and shook her as if she had been a naughty child. "He's going to do everything he can to unravel this mystery and put a stop to those blackmail letters, and I'm not going to let you pay him back by calling him ugly names. Apologize right now!"

To Bob's amazement Cherry's small face began to quiver and tears welled up in the golden eyes. "I'm sorry, Bob. I'll be good. I—I apologize," Cherry's voice came sweet and muffled from the little head cradled in the hollow of Faith's shoulder.

"All right, infant!" Bob's voice was comradely and gay again. "Now, listed to the report of Detective Faith Lane, and we'll decide where to go from here."

After Faith had rapidly sketched the day's adventures for Cherry—the finding of conclusive evidence against Lola Gonzales, Bob's logical accounting for his meeting with "Handsome Harry," Pete Gonzales, under the veranda of "Ye Olde Lodge Cabin," and Lola's frightened fleeing during their absence from lunch.

Bob Hathaway reached for his hat. "There's no use wasting time in speculating on how Lola got the low-down on Cherry. The thing to do is to find her and put the fear of the Lord and the law into her. Wait— I'll look up her address and we'll drive out to her house."

Within five minutes the three of them were in Bob's roadster, headed for the "across-the-tracks" part of town.

It was Bob who knocked at the door and who greeted the shapely, middle-aged, blonded woman who at last answered his knock.

"I'm your daughter's employer, Mr. Hathaway, Mrs. Gonzales," Bob smiled pleasantly. "She left me quite suddenly today, while I was at lunch, and her note said her mother was very ill. I wanted to offer my assistance in my power."

The woman but shook her head in frank bewilderment. "That's local! What'll she be up to next? Lord, Mr. Hathaway, I ain't sick! And if I was, Lola wouldn't know nothing about it. She ain't been livin' at home for a dog's age. She got sore and left home when I laid the law down to her about that low-life rascal Chris Wiley."

"Do you know where she is living, Mrs. Gonzales?" Bob's voice was sympathetic and inquiring at the same time.

"Got a room over on the West Side somewhere. Oh, Pete! Pete! Do you know Lola's address?" She turned her head and bawled into the black interior behind the door.

"Who wants to know?" a hoarse voice challenged.

"Mr. Hathaway, that Lola works for!" Mrs. Gonzales shouted. "Commerc!"

There was no answer. Faith and Constipation is at the bottom of more than forty harassing diseases. Unpleasant breath, blotchy complexion, spots before the eyes—these are forerunners of worse to follow! Conquer constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Bob exchanged a quick glance of foreboding and suspicion as the seconds dragged on. At last Mrs. Gonzales, impatient from bawling unsuccessfully for her son, went in search of him.

"I'm going to scout around the back of the house," Bob told her suddenly. "Chase him in the car if he comes out this way. Cherry can drive."

Gulls "Detail" Only a Few to Watch Each Ship

Chicago—Gulls covering the long breakwater at the mouth of the Chicago river provide an interesting spectacle as they rise, cloudlike, to greet an outgoing ship and detail a few of their number to accompany it across Lake Michigan.

As the huge double span Michigan Avenue bridge, last barrier over the murky stream, bisects and moves noiselessly skyward in response to the throaty yawning of the vessel, nosing slowly northward, swarms of gulls, leave their resting place and begin to circle the ship.

They escort the boat some distance into the lake and then, as if previously arranged, the greater number return to the breakwater, leaving a few of their companions to make the trip. They seem to feel that food to be picked from refuse of the ship is not enough for the entire flock.

The gulls in the winter depend largely on food they can pick from the Chicago river as it flows backward from the lake.

Movies of Human Organs are Better than Talks

Germans Do Not Think Ex-Kaiser Will Return

Berlin—(AP)—The German betting odds are strongly against ex-Emperor William and his wife ever taking up their abode on the Prussian country estate reserved to them for life as a potential residence in the settlement between the State of Prussia and the Hohenzollerns.

It is generally agreed, however, that it was quite natural for the ex-Kaiser to pick the particular place he selected, as Bad Homburg, where the estate and castle are located, has long been famous as a resort to which royalty flocked for health and recreation.

Not only did members of the German royal families frequent Bad Homburg in the old days, but the late King Edward VII of England, then Prince of Wales, began coming to Bad Homburg in 1882. For a long period he spent several weeks there every year drinking the curative waters. The English colony that followed was for years the most numerous one from abroad.

TON LITTER AT STATE HOSPITAL IS FINE RECORD

Dixon Institution Has Fine Mark in State Contest of Year

Emil Peterson, head of the farming departments of the Dixon state hospital, has just completed an exceptional test at the institution's stock farm and has developed more than a ton of pork in a 180 day test. In a contest which has been conducted by the farm heads of all the state institutions, the Dixon hospital farms have established a record which it is believed will be difficult to equal.

Mr. Peterson last May selected a Duroc sow from the herd on the stock farm, to enter the contest. The sow farrowed May 17 with a litter of nine fine pigs the herd being immediately placed on the test. At the close of the 180 day period last Monday, the nine pigs totalled 2,275 pounds of high grade pork. One of the porkers tipped the beams at a little better than 300 pounds. The test was made under adverse conditions in many ways and very little extra food or care was given the test herd over the other 190 head of hogs on the stock farm. Breeding, feeding and management were the three principal points which entered into the success of the contest.

Due to Good Care.

Under conditions as found on the institution stock farm, it was originally looked upon as quite a difficult task to develop a ton litter in 180 days, but through the care and attention given the selected herd by Mr. Peterson, he has gone the test 275 pounds better.

The extent of farming operations at the Dixon state hospital, which is the most important department, aside from caring for the state's unfortunate, has been far more successful this year than at any season since the institution was established. Some idea of the extent of farming activity at the institution may be gleaned from the following figures as to the amount of supplies raised for the feeding of more than 2,000 patients and employees:

Gardens Adequate.

Aside from potatoes, the gardens at the institution have provided a sufficient crop to supply the institution throughout the year. Potatoes are a crop which has never produced a sufficient quantity locally to supply the institution and this year the total production was estimated at more than 2,000 bushels, a quantity sufficient to supply the institution for a period of three months.

In the vegetable gardens consisting of carrots, beets, turnips and parsnips, more than a sufficient crop was raised this season. The root cellars at present contain a sufficient amount of these vegetables to last for the year. In addition one car load and two truck loads of these vegetables, representing 1,000 bushels was sent to the Peoria state hospital to relieve a shortage caused by the drowning out of the gardens at the institution.

The stock farm at present cares for 190 head of hogs, chiefly of the Duroc breed, and 88 head of high grade Holstein milk cows. A sufficient amount of pork is raised to feed the institution the year around and an average of 6,000 pounds of pork is consumed monthly. Three to six hogs are butchered weekly at the farm.

No Bovine T. B.

A report on the conditions of the herd of Holsteins at the institution was received yesterday afternoon, following tests made by Dr. H. C. Barth, state and federal representative, which showed that not a single reactor had been discovered in the herd of 88 Holsteins, which furnish milk to the institution. This gives the institution herd a mark of 100 percent tuberculin free which is exceptional.

The canning department at the hospital has closed one of the busiest seasons since the institution was established here. A total of 82 barrels of sauer kraut were put up this fall. Gardner Peterson and his forces set out more than 62,000 cabbage plants last spring and planted 14 acres in tomato plants. The store room shows 65 barrels of cucumber pickles put up this fall and eight barrels of chow chow. On the shelves in the store room are 13,596 one-gallon cans of tomatoes which represent this season's crop from the 14 acres. There are 500 one-gallon cans of green string beans, 300 gallons of pumpkin for pies, and 864 gallons of rhubarb.

Grain Crops Good.

On the farm, much of the corn remains to be picked, but thus far the corn is running about 46 bushels to the acre. Over 3,200 bushels of oats of very high quality were harvested, together with 900 bushels of barley. More than 250 tons of clover and alfalfa hay, together with some timothy is in the mows for the winter feeding. These figures, which are accurate, give some idea of the farming activities carried on at the Dixon institution during the year.

The exceptional record established by Mr. Peterson, chief farmer, in his one ton litter, came about through a contest started last spring by Farm Garden and Dairy consultant, C. E. Robinson of the Department of Public Welfare, in which all of the state institutions entered. In announcing the contest, Mr. Robinson admitted at the time that the production of a ton of pork from a single sow in 180 days was a real test of swine growing and that it was not only possible but probable that every institution of the state could accomplish the feat, provided the proper methods were used. The three principals involved were: good breeding, good feeding and good management. The following rules were laid down to govern the contest:

Rules of Contest.

(1)—Select three sows that are well bred and have proved good mothers. Too much care cannot be exercised on this point.

(2)—All three sows should be bred on or about May 20.

(3)—Five days after farrowing, select one of the three sows as the best prospect for the test.

(4)—In case the sow selected has more than ten pigs, the litter should be reduced to that number. No sow can properly nurse more than ten pigs and in no instance should hand feeding be resorted to.

Suggestions:

Careful housing and control of disease and parasites should be observed. At all times keep the swine well sheltered against heat and cold. Swine should have an abundance of clean, fresh water, and should also be furnished at all times with sufficient high protein feed.

Your garbage, carefully selected, will be of great value to you, when added to tankage, should insure rapid growth.

Some checkups should be had on the number of pigs farrowed from each sow. This is to encourage you to get a better feeding line of sows than you possibly already have by the number of pigs farrowed and the number of pigs raised.

Attention should be given to the sanitation of the hogs so they will keep free from worms and cholera and any other diseases prevalent among hogs.

In feeding them the primary thing is to raise practically all their own feed and grow them as cheaply as possible. Keep away from expensive feed, and learn to mix their own mineral mixtures and how to feed them. A good thing to use is wood ashes, which is a very good mineral feed, and you should have legumes to feed to the hogs, such as alfalfa, soy beans, or red clover.

It would be a good idea if after the first six weeks you would weigh the hogs you are raising to see if they are making desired gain.

At the end of the six months period, every person having charge of the hogs will write and tell of his interesting experiences and also what he has done to push along his hogs.

Bright Lights Lure

Many Insects to End

Bakersfield, Cal., (AP)—Bright lights, to which are charged the downfall of many human butterflies, lure thousands of insects to their deaths nightly over irrigation ponds in this region.

The lights were placed over the water by farmers who discovered that wild ducks were attracted by a plentiful supply of bugs. The ducks got the bugs, but the farmers got the ducks.

No poisonous reptiles and few wild animals are to be found in Japan.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The two undefeated teams of the Western conference are slight favorites over their opponents tomorrow. Thus it appears that Michigan and Northwestern are likely to share the 1926 football championship honors.

If one team wins and the other loses, the title situation will be perfectly clear, but if both teams lose, there may be as many as four claimants to the honors. Ohio, Illinois and Minnesota are but a step behind the leaders, each with a defeat at the hands of Michigan.

Michigan and Northwestern each could lose tomorrow and wind up with a percentage better than the three teams tied for second place, if the title were decided purely on percentages. If they both lose, their statistics would read "Four Victories with one Defeat." Suppose then that Minnesota and Ohio win, their standing would be "Three victories and one defeat," and considerable hubbub would ensue.

The championship statistics of the conference, since its origin in 1896, show that Michigan has won the most football titles, including ties for the honor, with ten, while Chicago has finished at the top of the heap, undisturbed, the most times, with six. Here are the records:

Northwestern	0	1
Illinois	2	4
Ohio	3	0
Minnesota	2	6
Wisconsin	3	2

COLDEST FOOTBALL OF FALL WILL BE PLAYED TOMORROW

Midwest Gridirons are Buried in Snow and Straw Today

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Into the teeth of snow flurries and chilling winds, five Western Conference teams trekked today toward the final battles in the Big Ten campaign.

The teams were clad like Alaskan dog mushers, in hoods, extra sweaters and mittens, and found tomorrow's gridirons buried in straw and canvas to take some of the hardship out of the coldest football of the fall.

In the van of the invasions were Michigan and Northwestern, the two teams undefeated in the conference title fight and ending the season with desperate efforts to get nothing less than a tie and possibly a lone claim on the championship.

Yost took 34 players to Minnesota where Michigan is a slight favorite to down the Gophers before a homecoming crowd. Molenda was all wrapped up in tape and his ankles may keep him out of much of the game.

Purple Invades Iowa.
Northwestern, taking no chances on an upset, worked out in the snow and departed for Iowa with the entire squad in tow.

At Illinois Zuppke counted all his regulars in shape and announced that the lineup starting against Ohio will be the array that stopped both Chicago and Pennsylvania.

Indiana, bent on successive conference defeats will try to defeat Purdue, at Lafayette, where Phelan indicated the likelihood of changes in Purdue's lineup.

Starg drove Chicago in a final session before the renewal of traditional rivalry with Wisconsin, coming out of the north with a passing attack to humble Chicago.

Yost Joins Coaches Against Shift Play

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Fielding H. Yost, veteran chief of staff of Michigan football, adds his voice to sentiment among Western Conference coaches against the use of the shift play.

There is no value in the shift, Yost contends, if existing rules are rigidly enforced; its continued use by "no more than three or four major teams in America" only breeds ill-feeling.

Both Zuppke of Illinois and Starg of Chicago have voiced their opposition to the use of the shift, contending that it gives too much advantage to the offense, and the Illinois coach recently announced he would press complete abolition of such play at the winter rules meeting.

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Tod Morgan of Seattle will risk his junior world lightweight title in a local ring for the third time within a year, when he faces Carl Duane of New York in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Stone Yielded Fish 2,000,000 Years Old

San Francisco.—(AP)—A fossil fish, believed to be two million years old and belonging to the oldest known fish family, the ganoid, has been brought to light by the chisel of a stone cutter in a yard here.

The fish, which was petrified, was found in a block of limestone. It was ten inches long and perfect in every detail, even showing the color of the flesh and scales. Differing from other specimens of the ganoid family, the fossil is rather round and stubby.

the field with a victory because of failure to boot the oval between the uprights.

Those who are opposed to this play contend that the importance of the kick is all out of proportion. After a team has battled its way down the field and lugged the ball over the goal line, some football men believe it is not right that the team scoring should be compelled to kick a field goal for one little point, which may or may not win or lose an important game.

Many Good Arguments.

The proponents of the kick after touchdown put forth good arguments. One of the stock arguments is that this always has been part of the touchdown play. The rules specify that even if time is up and a team scores a touchdown, the kick follows. Also, if it is pointed out that the kicking game would suffer if this feature of the game were thrown out, field goal kickers of necessity must practice for hours, and the necessity of booting the ball after the major score encourages this phase of the fall sport.

The present system of scoring was arrived at with the idea of balancing the difference between two field goals, and a touchdown coupled with the added point earned by the kick. A touchdown is considered the major score, and if completed gives seven points against two field goals which count only three.

The contention is advanced that a touchdown alone should count seven points, abolish the kick after scoring, and the balance would still be maintained. Some football experts contend that the drop kick is not the correct method of kicking after touchdown. Kicking from placement is considered more certain, and is almost a sure method of getting the ball over the bar if the kicker and the player holding the ball work together with the center in long sessions of practice. But the question reverts to the contention of some followers of the sport, which is: Should one man be responsible for winning or losing a game after the entire team of eleven men have worked as a unit in putting the ball over the goal line.

Stock Show to Select Champion Fat Bullock

Chicago.—The 27th anniversary of the International Livestock Exposition will be observed this year Nov. 27-Dec. 4. The prize award of the show, if one can be ranked above another, is selection of the grand champion fat bullock, to be chosen this year by George Gordon-Davis of Buenos Aires.

More than 11,000 head of livestock and 5,000 samples of hay and grain have been entered for the $100,000 prizes and trophies.

Besides these, there are contests in which 1,200 farm youths, picked from 650,000 Boys' and Girls' club members will compete.

Besides the American entries there will be more than 500 head of livestock from Canada. Last year the Prince of Wales prize bull, King of the Fairies, won first prize in his class.

but last year L. P. Yates, of Fishkill, Montana, took the crown.

While he is very fond of his granddaughter, he shudders at the thought of hearing a baby cry at night.

Bank Run by Students Had Record Day Deposits

Lynn, Mass.—(AP)—Students in the Lynn English High School run their own savings bank and combine, to practical advantage, study and thrift. The bank is said to hold the records for deposits in such an institution in a single day—$3150—received one Monday morning. The school has 1400 students.

The Lynn system of a student-operated school bank has been tested by twelve years successful service. It has been copied in fourteen states and two foreign countries.

Regular banking rooms are maintained. Students, themselves, fill the various positions, receive the deposits and keep the accounts. The school savings plan has spread in one form or another to all the public schools of the city above the third grade. In that time the students have saved more than $200,000.

Mistaken for Waiters: Germans Change Uniforms

Berlin.—(AP)—Republican simplicity in diplomatic dress has failed to work out in the young German Republic.

After eight years the danger of diplomats being mistaken for waiters became so real that president von Hindenburg and the cabinet passed an order allowing German envoys abroad, the foreign minister and the secretary of state to wear a semblance of the gorgeous old monarchist uniforms at state functions.

Under Secretary of State Karl von Schubert was the first to blossom out in the new navy blue garb with a double-tailed frock, gilded buttons and a peaked ostrich-plumed hat. Wearing of the new uniforms is discretionary.

Good Thoughts for Good People

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense; he will come and save you. And the ransom of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

Sorrow is Mount Sini. If one will, one may go up and talk with God, face to face.

Henry Ward Beecher.

The real test of character is joy. For what you rejoice in, that you love. For what you love, that you value. For what you value, that you do.

None but God can satisfy the longings of the immortal soul; that as the heart was made for Him, so He only can fill it.

Trench.

As we gain the true sense of existence; as we come into the understanding that God as infinite Love can never be absent; that man is the offspring of divine Love, coexistent and coeternal with God; that man is forever in his rightful place, his life eternally "hid with Christ in God," where no slightest phase of error can ever penetrate; that evil, error, whatever its claim to entity, is wholly without reality and power to harm, to deprive us of any form of good—such understanding cannot fail to turn sorrow and grief into gladness and rejoicing.

EMMA STILL SEES MARRIAGE AS AN EMPTY FORMALITY

Says She Hasn't Seen Need of Changing Her Opinions

NOTE—No woman in modern time has been more actively hostile to the marriage custom than Emma Goldman, who, some eight years ago, was among a shipload of deportees sent back to Russia. She made lecture tours of America, speaking on marriage, and wrote pamphlets. Then, suddenly, came word from Montreal, Can., that Emma Goldman had arrived under the name of Mrs. E. C. Colton. After a life time of antagonism, Emma Goldman herself had married a Welch man. Her followers were amazed and still are. What could this mean? N.E.A. sent a representative to locate her and learn at first hand what Emma Goldman now thinks of marriage. Herein is presented an exclusive, personally written article, the second of a series of five, outlining her opinions today.

BY EMMA GOLDMAN

Copyrighted, 1926, N.E.A. Service. Many people have expressed surprise that I, who have for so many years criticized the marriage institution, should in the end have submitted to it.

Invariably they demand to know whether I have changed my views, held in the past.

I cannot be too emphatic in my declaration that now, as ever, I am convinced that the institution of marriage, as such, can accomplish nothing whatever to the fundamental motives that bring men and women together. It will always be my feeling that the union of two people is an entirely private affair.

Bizarre Then—Accepted Now

Not many years ago this point of view was considered startling and revolutionary. Today it meets with far more general acceptance than some care to admit.

Even conservative people are beginning to realize that while marriage may be a matter of convenience, it has no bearing whatever either on emotional impulses or sex expression.

Certainly the ritual of marriage has no bearing on the life and habits of human beings. At best, the institution is no more than a public sanction of a private arrangement between two people. Never has the state been able to give more than this sanction, since it will always be love which dominates such human relations.

I often smile at the old references to so-called free love. As though love could ever be anything but free! Nowadays thousands of people submit to the ceremony of marriage, not because they believe in it, but because it protects them from the vulgar prying into their private lives.

Marriage the Answer

And so, if you behold me married today you have, herein, the answer—If you care to have one! A marriage does not need to lead to a divorce of one's viewpoint.

The greatest offender against the sanctity of privacy has been the state. Since the reaction ushered in by the World War, the state has relinquished most of its other activities to the exclusive business of holding the individual by the throat.

No longer are freedom of movement or taste possible. Numberless restrictions surround the individual from morning to night. What he eats, drinks, reads, sees, the association he makes, the opinions he hears, and whom he foregathers with, are under constant surveillance. The result is that the individual is constantly confronted with the need of devising methods by which he can escape the tentacles of such intrusions and obstructions.

Necessity Mothers Device

Efforts to thwart from without always create a genius for devising means of escape from within. Thus prohibition has only served to wet the American thirst. Suppression of literary effort has only brought forth ever more revolutionary books. Incidentally, it has increased the intellectual interest in and discussion of the proscribed works.

In the matter of travel, with the everlasting interference of movement imposed by passport and visa, the state forces people to exercise all their craft to break through the Chinese wall built around the whole world since the war. That does not mean, however, that people are necessarily taking the state to their bosom.

The same in a measure holds true of marriage. No one with brains goes on believing that it is made in heaven, or should be made on earth by anyone outside of those immediately concerned, but they go through with the process in the same spirit as one takes out a passport or secures a visa—to obtain breathing space and to protect the privacy of human personality.

Flashes of Life

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York—Professional golfers here are envying Leo Diegel. They hear he has a California job as private teacher for Joseph M. Schenck, movie magnate, at a salary of $15,000 a year and $10,000 expenses.

New York—Abe Hummel, notorious lawyer of 25 years ago, who made millions and was the inspiration for many latter day fiction dealing with sharp practice, spent millions too. His estate has just been appraised at $56,717.

Binghamton, N. Y.—Professor Frank Boynton, would not give a dollar bill for a dozen brides as school teachers. But once the novelty of married life has worn off, they are fit for school duties, he says.

Constantinople—The prefect of the town of Karahissar has ordered women to stop wearing such long skirts. They have been using 26 yards of cloth and three dresses each all at once. There's a movement on foot for a compromise between the three skirts and the "one third of a skirt" that is the mode in Constantinople, Paris and the United States of America.

London—In the opinion of male students the women's colleges at Oxford should be leveled to the ground. The Oxford Union Society, a famous organization of debaters, has so voted.

New York—James Churchill, a pioneer in running cabarets on Broadway, is now heartily in favor of prohibition. He is convinced that prohibition will regulate itself eventually. Night clubs, successors to the pre-prohibition cabarets, he regards as "shake downs."

Observatory Tests to See if Earth Shrinks

London—(AP)—An attempt to accurately determine whether the earth is shrinking is to be made by scientists of the world who have begun tests to detect and measure possible moves of the earth's crust. The principal observatories in various parts of the globe are cooperating with the Royal Observatory at Greenwich.

The first experiment consisted of wireless signals sent by stations in the United States and on the Continent at the rate of 61 rhythmic signals per minute. The time of the signals were registered by observatories at San Diego, California, Algiers, Shanghai, Paris, Washington, Berlin and Australia.

The world's largest machine, a turbine generator of 60,000 kilowatt capacity, has just been installed in the New York East River railway station. It generates enough energy to pull 47 trains.

Divine Worship at 10:45 a. m. This is to be a Thanksgiving service. We Christians especially have many reasons for giving thank. Them:

"Thanksgiving Proclamation. Text:
Psalm 92:1. It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord and to sing praises unto Thy name O most high. A special offering will be received. The church will be decorated with the fruits of the field. The choir will offer a Thanksgiving anthem.
The lecture Sunday at 7:30 p. m. is by Rev. Theo. Melton of Earlville,
Ill. Both choirs will sing.

ST. PAUL'S EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

Rev. Lloyd Warren Walter, Pastor
Rev. Carl B. Caughman,
Pastor in India
9:30 a. m. Bible School. We have been rejoicing during these fall days because of the increased attendance and the general interest in the school.
We are praying that this early snow and blizzards will not cut down the high record we have attained. Let us all make a special effort.

10:45 a. m. Divine worship. At this service about forty or more will be commissioned for the Every Member Visitation of the afternoon. A remarkably large number of the Congregation came to the Congregational Supper through the snow and wind last Wednesday evening. The church budget for 1927 was discussed and adopted. Those who were present enthusiastically made their subscriptions to cover the budget. Of course not all the members were present and those who could not come are asked to remain at home Sunday afternoon between 2 and 4 o'clock to receive the visitors and be prepared to make their subscriptions. It will be quite necessary that subscriptions for 1927 be increased. Our Lord commands,
"Give and then promise, and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down, shaken together, and running over." The reason many people do not get along better is because they disobey the Lord's command. Fear and unbelief in obeying the Lord's claims marks the weakness of so called Christian people as well as the weakness of the whole Christian church. The Lord says,
"Try me." The pastor will give a brief sermon at this service.

9:30 p. m. Luther League. Leader
Lillian Koepfer. Topic, "Praise God
From Whom All Blessings Flow."
These meetings abound in fervor and enthusiasm.
7:30 p. m. Vesper Service. The Young People's choir have been helpful in rendering this service inspirational and devotional. If the men are able, a brief report of the afternoon's visitation will be given.
The members of the congregation are asked to watch announcements in

The Telegraph concerning the Union
Thanksgiving Service.
You are cordially invited to all our services.

FIRST BOYS' FAIR TO OPEN TONIGHT

eggs were given out the same week, and all birds to be eligible for exhibition, must have been hatched prior to a specified date. Being from the same stock and being hatched at practically the same time the differences in the birds will be due largely to the care and feeding under the supervision of the boys.

Secure Famous Judge.
To insure that the judging would be impartial and based on the merits of the birds Mr. Hale of Glenn Ellyn was secured to judge the poultry show. Mr. Hale is superintendent of a gigantic egg-laying contest conducted by the Northern Yeast Co.
and has issued an invitation to these boys interested in raising poultry, to come to Glenn Ellyn and visit the contest. Mr. Hale is a specialist in feeding for egg production and is in great demand as a judge, enjoying a national reputation, and being the author of a number of authoritative works on poultry raising. To give some idea as to the ability of the man the club has been so fortunate in securing, it might be well to mention that he has already been engaged to take charge of the poultry judging at six state fairs in the fall of 1927; he will during this winter, judge large shows in twenty eight states; during January he will judge the National Poultry Show to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York City. His advice during the judging will be of great value to poultry raising in the community.

partment of the fair, the list of exhibits and chairmen in charge follow:

FRESH DAIRY COWS

AT AUCTION
At Richard Long Barn, Harmon, Illinois
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1926
Commencing at 1:00 p. m. Sharp

40-HEAD JERSEYS-40

20 FRESH WITH CALF AT FOOT 20

These 20 head of fresh cows run in age from three to five years old, have real type and breeding, and in color they are light fawns and squirrel grays, cream colors and a few dark. Large udders and perfect teats.
The calves out of these cows will also be sold in the auction. Come out and see a real offering of cows. Ask Col. Powers about our cows. He knows the kind we sell.

10 HEAD OUTSTANDING SPRINGERS 10

These 10 springers we feel are as good a lot of springers as you have seen sold anywhere. We have selected them with great care. Everyone a well bred Jersey. Best color and type. Every udder must be sound under our guarantee. These springers are smooth and no long ugly horns.
They will all be fresh this winter and some of them right away.

Remember the dairy cow has been the best friend the Corn Belt farmer has had the last three years. Ready money to pay current bills each week from cream checks has been the backbone of many a farm home.
These cows are raised by farmers that make a business of raising good cows from heavy producing ancestry.

10 TWO-YEAR-OLD HEIFERS 10

These heifers are well bred and will be fresh this Fall or Winter. We Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY
Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"DON'T TELL THE WIFE," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. pictureization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental misfits. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves another man, Abner Grattman, Stinner, lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic business deal, worth fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Victory will mean business good will. Ranny learns that the wager is with Abner Grattman! Abner, unobserved, maliciously cuts Ranny's stirrup strap. Distracted as he watches Joan flirt with Abner, Ranny neglects his playing. The rival captain is about to score. Ranny pursues—

CHAPTER II—Continued
If a pony had speed Ranny was the man to draw it out. Milkmaid had speed, and Ranny urged it out of her dead game little heart now. Breath-fast, like a gull scudding in the teeth of a stormy wind, Ranny and Milkmaid floated rather than raced down that field; through the six streaming players as though they had been standing stock still, and foot by foot drawing up on the thundering Argentine captain. Nor an ounce of Ranny's weight was in the stirrups—knees and flanks glued him to Milkmaid's neck, and the holding touch of the ball of his foot in the stirrup was light as feather down.

Now the Argentine captain swung his mallet at the ball. Just a mechanical formality seemed necessary to register the goal. But Ranny frantically threw Milkmaid forward and stood up in his stirrups for a counter stroke.

The heavy strain of his foot was all that was needed to tear through the film of strap left by Abner's

That was the little Cockney, tussling over the mare's head. And that was Clay, kneeling on the clover-cropped turf, fumblingly taking Ranny's head onto his lap.

Water, fetched by a groom, was dashed on the white face—the pallid wrists. A trainer passed skilful hands over Ranny's entire body, probing delicately; then he glanced up reassuringly into the peering ring of distressed faces: "Nothing broken, at least—"

He hastily applied restoratives. Another moment and everybody looked at everybody else in sheer relief, and breathed freer—for Ranny's eyes had flickered open.

The mists of shock and pain were dissolved in the essence of his brave vitality; and, characteristically, as he struggled to sit up, helped by many bronzed and sympathetic hands, his first words were of his faithful partner in play.

"Is Milkmaid all right?" The rugged little Cockney groom, fondling the mare's hind head, whispered through his tears: "Milkmaid has played her last game, sir."

Deeply touched, Ranny gazed in heavy silence for a long minute at the dead pony.

There was unashamed moisture in his eyes—and in the eyes of the mates and rivals, who presently helped him to his feet.

"Strap! the strap should have been changed!" cried Clay. "Now, if the buckle had given way, or the stirrup tread itself had broken—hullo, what's this?" He was down on his knees beside Milkmaid's body; and now he held up the stirrup and the remnant of the strap: "There was no accident here! This strap was deliberately cut!"

Swiftly the telltale strap was passed from hand to hand, while grim faces reflected the stunned amazement of virile men that any fellow human, however low, could commit so dastardly a deed.

"Who?" and "Why?" These questions, which each man asked his neighbor, were none the less eloquent because looked instead of spoken.

Ranny limped near to the Cockney, a team mate and Clay supporting either arm. "Was anyone tampering?" he began.

But the little groom, no less outraged, was ahead of him in thought: "The straps were h'okay when I saddled the mare, sir—I could take me dying oath to that!"

He turned inquiringly to his stable boy, who stood nervously at hand.

"There was nobody near Milkmaid when I was holding her," the lad avowed anxiously; adding, then, as an afterthought of no consequence, "Nobody except one of Mr. Forbes' friends."

"Who was that?" Sharp the question rang.

"Mr. Grattman." Clay felt Ranny's muscles flinch beneath his bracing hand. Ranny's face remained a mask—a grim mask, withal, yet an absolute cloak to his inward emotions. He turned—still aided by Clay and a mate—full around to the little groom and said lightly, deprecatingly:

"Well, have to look elsewhere for our clue! Meanwhile, carry on! Drake can sub for me the rest of this half. I'll sit out till the fifth chucker."

While unfortunate Milkmaid's body was removed, Ranny, stiff and sore and unsteady, was helped toward his sedan by Clay. The storm of admiring cheers that was the relieved crowd's tribute to his pluck beat unheard about his ears.

"It's got to the point, eh, where he'll even go so far as to kill me off to simplify matters for Joan and himself?"

"It looks that way," said Clay darkly.

When Ranny spoke again there was cold murder in his eyes, and the still keen physical pain that each limping step occasioned fed its intensity: "Sometime, somehow, I'll find out if Abner Grattman really cut that strap. And—if he did—on that day I'll give him the most terrible thrashing that any man ever got!"

"I'll take up where you leave off," said Clay. "If there's enough of him left to lay hands upon!"

A sympathetic crowd made a lane for Ranny to his car. Joan, white, and with the quick tears of her impulsive nature gleaming on her long lashes, assisted him into a seat with willing hands. Clay hurried and assumed his duties.

"I'm awfully sorry, old scout," said Joan, awkwardly.

"Thanks," he said shortly. His eyes were not upon her, but upon Abner, who hovered hypocritically at her elbow.

"Rotten luck, Forbes," said Abner in his meaty, oily manner. "What happened?"

"You know as much as I do," snapped Ranny, with an acid look.

Scots Prefer Whiskey

Straight: Not Cocktails

Aberdeen—(AP)—The cocktail has lost its hold in Scotland. Whiskey straight is taking its place.

Lord Salvesen, former judge of the Scottish bench, says the cocktail in London is more popular than at any other time, but the cocktail novelty in Scotland has entirely worn off.

"The chief cocktail consumers in London," said Lord Salvesen, announcing the passing of the cocktail habit here, "are women, and young men, who like to do something merely because they think it is smart or because the other fellow does it. The Scot does not care for mixed drinks and never will."

Lotteries Flourish in

Denmark: Bar Bookies

Copenhagen —(AP)—In Denmark lotteries flourish. There are four, each of which is conducted under strict Government control. About 15 percent of the premiums are retained by the Government, the remainder being distributed as prizes.

Lotteries and totalitators at races are the only form of gambling allowed in Denmark. Book-making, for instance, is a criminal offense.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, instructor in Pendleton University, is caught in the feud between the student radicals led by her admirer, ERIC WATERS, and the conservatives led by DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor.

Dr. Dorn is also attracted to her and tries to persuade her to conciliate the dean.

MYRA ALDRICH, a student living in Judith's boarding house, is in love with Eric and jealous of Judith.

When "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, tries to blackmail Dean Brown's wife, Judith befriends her and asks Eric to silence Shea.

Eric is arrested as a material witness when Shea's body is found in a creek.

Judith finds Eric waiting at her house several days later. He tells Judith that Mrs. Brown has secured his release by telling prodigious lies to the prosecutor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

"MARRIED women!" gasped Judith. "He didn't mean—"

Eric nodded. "Yes he did. The dean's wife."

Judith sat perfectly motionless for a full minute, her hand clutching the door of the car.

Eric went on. "She had told them that I spent the night before Christmas with her."

Judith recoiled. She stared at Eric, who was calmly puffing at his pipe and fingering the throttle. He did not look at her.

"But—" she gasped, after a time. "Why?"

"That's just it," said Eric. "Why, in God's name?"

Judith shook her head. "I can't understand it. It's horrible."

Eric spoke slowly. "Well, it is. But it had one compensation—it got me out of that roach-tobacco-garlic jail."

Judith was not listening. "Eric," she said. "Mrs. Brown did that out of gratitude. She's a woman of frantic loyalty. And she felt that you saved her from Shea before. She came to me after your arrest, almost in a frenzy and said we'd have to get you out, some way, any way."

Eric took his pipe out of his mouth and reached with one hand for his tobacco pouch. "Hold the wheel a minute, Jude, while I fill this thing."

Judith gave him another puzzled glance, as he calmly poured the tobacco into the bowl of the pipe and drew the string of the pouch tight again.

"All I can say," he mused comfortably. "Is that she had an exaggerated sense of gratitude, but it's very fortunate for me."

"Eric," Judith answered, "do you suppose she thought you DID kill Shea?" She looked at him fearfully.

But instead of anger, a chuckle greeted her question. "By golly, Jude, do you suppose so?"

Judith turned away to the far horizon, her eyes clouded.

"Well, I hadn't ended the story yet," said Eric. "When the chief had finished bawling me out for my affair with the dean's wife, he picked up the envelope the jailer had brought in, and tore it open, keeping one scowling eye on me all the while."

"Then he read it through to the end, laid it down and looked at me. 'Scene,' I've talked out of my turn. But if you know what's good for you, young fellow, you'll keep this under your hat."

"If you ever let this conversation out to your best friend, there are other charges we can push. The prosecutor hadn't told me the lady didn't want you to know. Damn fine woman, I should say. Didn't want you to feel under obligations to her. Now you can clear out."

"I don't know," said Judith. "I'm forenoon, at the Court House in Dixon in said county, when and where you can appear, if you see fit, and show cause, if any you have, why said will should not be admitted to probate."

FRED G. DIMICK, County Clerk, November 12th, 1926. Nov 12 1926

Lily Prophet Barred by Federal Decree

San Francisco (AP)—The "Avenue of the Temple of Heaven" mourns. An indescribable loss is felt in the narrow streets and dark alleys of San Francisco's Chinatown, for the government has placed its foot down on further importations of the famed Chinese water lily or narcissus, because destructive insects have been found secreted in the innocent-looking bulb.

The fragrant plant, some Chinese believe, has powers to prophesy the grower's prospects for the ensuing year. Generally at this time of the year, the bulbs are being prepared for planting, timed to blossom forth their flowery message of hope or despair on the first day of the new year.

Some have tried to preserve last year's flowers by drying them and burying them in earth, but the outcome of this method is uncertain and as no substitute has been found Chinatown faces abandonment of one of its principal New Year's table decorations.

HONOLULU VAST

Honolulu—The city and county of Honolulu occupy an area among the largest in the world, reaching 1159 miles south of the city of Honolulu and slightly more than that to the northwest.

She went up the steps and knocked, and could hear the sound echo in the rooms within.

"And I did. So that's that. Look at that little creek, Jude! Peach of a jump on horseback. Someday we'll get some horses and try it. What say?"

The girl beside him turned toward him without looking at the creek. "Eric," she said, very low, "it strikes me that this is something of an obligation you are under." She waited for his reply, with anxious eyes fixed on his face.

It came. "Sure thing. Damn fine woman, I agree with the chief."

"But I can't quite see how you could accept such a sacrifice."

"Well, I hadn't ended the story yet," said Eric. "When the chief had finished bawling me out for my affair with the dean's wife, he picked up the envelope the jailer had brought in, and tore it open, keeping one scowling eye on me all the while."

"If you ever let this conversation out to your best friend, there are other charges we can push. The prosecutor hadn't told me the lady didn't want you to know. Damn fine woman, I should say. Didn't want you to feel under obligations to her. Now you can clear out."

"I don't know," said Judith. "I'm forenoon, at the Court House in Dixon in said county, when and where you can appear, if you see fit, and show cause, if any you have, why said will should not be admitted to probate."

FRED G. DIMICK, County Clerk, November 12th, 1926. Nov 12 1926

Uncle Sam Preserves Indians Burial Ground

Yakima, Wash. (AP)—Mamaloosa Island in the Columbia river, burial ground for western Indians for uncounted generations and particularly sacred to the Yakimas, has been set aside by the government as a Red Man's city of the dead.

Since the days when thousands of Indians from western plains and mountains made annual pilgrimages to the fishing grounds of The Dalles and the "turn-water" of the Columbia, bringing their dead with them, the island has been a holy ground for the aborigines. Formerly it was covered with large "dead houses," built of cedar, on the shelves of which reposed the mummified bodies of the red men.

Snow-wrapped bows and stone-tipped arrows were deposited with some of the older remains, and more modern weapons with some of the more recent.

The Truth About Eczema and Piles

Thousands and thousands of people are learning every week that one 35-cent box of Peterson's Ointment will abolish eczema and banish piles.

"I had eczema for many years on my head and could not get anything to stop the agony. I saw your ad and got one box and I owe you many thanks for the good it has done me. There isn't a blemish on my head now and I couldn't help but thank Peterson for the cure is great." Miss Mary Hill, 429 Third Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I have had itching piles for 15 years and Peterson's is the only ointment that relieved me, besides the piles seem to have gone." A. B. Rieger, 1127 Washington Avenue, Racine, Wis.

regret it, old dear."

They turned toward home, Eric still puffing calmly at the pipe, and Judith watching the fields and hills fly by.

"What's your theory of Shea's death?" Judith asked after a while. "I'm not sure it was murder," said Eric. "It would have been quite easy to skid off the road over that bank. Stranger motor accidents happen every day. That's one reason why I think it's all just a low conspiracy against me. The dean has out to get me by hook or crook, and Shea's death offered a chance. But just wait. He'll get his."

Judith laughed. "He already has, I guess. The police told him to get out of the Shea case and stay out. He'll be frantic to know why you were released."

Eric chuckled. "Serves him right if he finds out. But—I'm not satisfied with letting the police crack him down. I shall have something to say to the gentleman myself, one of these days, though I may not say it in so many words."

"If I were you, I think I'd lie low for a while now, Eric."

Eric smiled. "Do you know," she said slowly, "as they were nearing home, 'that bruise on your head didn't look like one received by running into a door. Eric. Are you sure you weren't in a fight?'"

"I don't fight with my fists, old dear. I don't have to," he answered loftily.

The river under the Strathmore bridge gleamed dully when Judith stopped to look at it that afternoon. There was a thin film of ice near the bare brown banks. She turned away from it with a little shudder and went on, past the prim rows of professional houses, until she came to Avon place.

Here too, the shades and burnished knockers of the houses reflected the calmly ordered lives of their inhabitants.

On the walk before Dean Brown's English cottage, Judith paused, looking curiously at the house front. Every shade was down and the door mat was placed primly against the wall.

She went up the steps and knocked, and could hear the sound echo in the rooms within. For a moment there was silence. Then she thought she heard footsteps. But the sound turned out to be only a movement in the trees nearby.

With a curious glance at the windows, Judith turned away. A little boy trundling a wooden wagon up the driveway next door called out to her. "There ain't nobody at home." Judith went down the steps toward him.

"How do you know?" she asked. "Cause I dropped my ball in their cellar window just now and I rang and rang and nobody came. Guess that ball's gone." Philosophical resignation was on his childish face, as he pulled the little cart on up the drive.

When Judith had last seen the house, curls of Christmas smoke were hanging about its chimneys and every window welcomed the traveler with a wreath. Standing now, still and deserted, with every blind drawn it seemed as hopeless and sodden as a human being struck down by insupportable grief.

With a little shiver, Judith walked slowly down the path to the street. Under the elms that lined the sidewalk, she turned about for one last look. She stood quite still, clasping her hands, her eyes glued to an upper window.

For a second, just as she turned, the white face of the dean's wife had appeared there.
